Love Sees End Of Rate War in

Shipping Board Official to Make Proposal to Clyde Line; Confers With W. Newsome, of United Fruit

Cash Guaranties Favored

Board Hopes to See Chaos in Ocean Tariffs Come to a Stop; Stability Needed

the North Atlantic and Western Steamship Company, and, second, the request of the various lines for government supervision of coastwise rates. The board may decide to recommend on actment of legislation by Congress giving control of intercoastal rates, but will not favor any attempt to extend the plan to transoceanic tariffs, he added.

Rate wars are almost entirely a development since the war, said Mr. Love, who remarked that steamship men in the old days would not permit the present chaos to continue. Some of the younger men need to be taught a lesson, he added.

son, he added.

The plan for posting cash forfeits to guarantee the maintenance of rates was advocated by Mr. Love as a means of bringing about stability in foreign tade. If this system could be worked out successfully it would be extended to a number of routes in his opinion.

"Stable rate, would help shippers immensely," said Mr. Love. "Every one would know then that he was getting rates as low as his competitors and he could make future commitments with some degree of assurance. The Shipping Board would prevent rates with some degree of assurance. The Shipping Board would prevent rates getting too high.

Clyde Line Announces

The Clyde Line announced yesterday that conference steamship companies plying between United States North Atlantic ports and the Virgin Islands, British and French West Indies, have cut rates on iron and steel products approximately 40 per cent. The new rate becomes effective on the Clyd service with the sailing of the steamer Martinique from this city on September 2.
